The Story of Civilization, by husband and wife Will and Ariel Durant, is an eleven-volume set of books covering Western history for the general reader. The volumes sold well for many years, and sets of them were frequently offered by book clubs.

The series was written over a span of more than four decades, and it totals four million words across nearly 10,000 pages, but is incomplete. In the first volume (Our Oriental Heritage, which covers the history of the East through 1933), Will Durant stated that he wanted to include the history of the West through the early 20th century. However, the series ends with The Age of Napoleon because the Durants both died in the 1980s—she in her 80s and he in his 90s—before they could complete additional volumes.

The first six volumes of The Story of Civilization are credited to Will Durant, with Ariel receiving recognition in the acknowledgments. In later volumes, beginning with The Age of Reason Begins, Ariel is credited as a co-author.

I. Our Oriental Heritage (1935)

This volume covers Near Eastern history until the fall of the Persian Empire in the 330s BC, and the history of India, China, and Japan up to the 1930s.

"Every chapter, every paragraph in this book will offend or amuse some patriotic or esoteric soul: the orthodox Jew will need all his ancestral patience to forgive the pages on Yahveh; the metaphysical Hindu will mourn this superficial scratching of Indian philosophy; The Chinese or Japanese sage will smile indulgently at these brief and inadequate selections from the wealth of Far Eastern literature and thought. ... Meanwhile a weary author may sympathize with Tai T'ung, who in the thirteenth century issued his "History of Chinese Writing" with these words: "Were I to await perfection, my book would never be finished." (p.ix)

1. The Establishment of Civilization
   1. The Conditions of Civilization
   2. The Economic Elements of Civilization
   3. The Political Elements of Civilization
   4. The Moral Elements of Civilization
   5. The Mental Elements of Civilization
   6. The Prehistoric Beginnings of Civilization

"The moulders of the world's myths were unsuccessful husbands, for they agreed that woman was the source of all evil." (page 70)

2. The Near East
   1. Sumeria
   2. Egypt
   3. Babylonia
   4. Assyria
   5. A Molley of Nations
For barbarism is always around civilization, amid it and beneath it, ready to engulf it by arms, or mass migration, or unchecked fertility. Barbarism is like the jungle; it never admits its defeat; it waits patiently for centuries to recover the territory it has lost. (page 265)

On the fall of India to the Moguls: "The bitter lesson that may be drawn from this tragedy is that eternal vigilance is the price of civilization. A nation must love peace, but keep its powder dry." (page 463)

"The realization of self-government was something new in the world; life without kings had not yet been dared by any great society. Out of this proud sense of independence, individual and collective, came a powerful stimulus to every enterprise of the Greeks; it was their liberty that inspired them to incredible accomplishments in arts and letters, in science and philosophy." (p. 233)

3. The Golden Age: 480â€“399 BC
   1. Pericles and the Democratic Experiment
   2. Work and Wealth in Athens
   3. The Morals and Manners of the Athenians
   4. The Art of Periclean Greece
   5. The Advancement of Learning
   6. The Conflict of Philosophy and Religion
   7. The Literature of the Golden Age
   8. The Suicide of Greece

   "As surprising as anything else in this civilization is the fact that it was brilliant without the aid or stimulus of women." (p. 305)

4. The Decline and Fall of Greek Freedom: 399â€“322 BC
   1. Philip
   2. Letters and Arts in the Fourth Century
   3. The Zenith of Philosophy
   4. Alexander

   "The class war had turned democracy into a contest in legislative looting." (p. 554)

5. The Hellenistic Dispersion: 322â€“146 BC
   1. Greece and Macedonia
   2. Hellenism and the Orient
   3. Egypt and the West
   4. Books
   5. The Art of the Dispersion
   6. The Climax of Greek Science
   7. The Surrender of Philosophy
   8. The Coming of Rome

   â€œWe have tried to show that the essential cause of the Roman conquest of Greece was the disintegration of Greek civilization from within. No great nation is ever conquered until it has destroyed itself.â€ (p. 659)

Epilogue: Our Greek Heritage

III. Caesar and Christ (1944)

The volume covers the history of Rome and of Christianity until the time of Constantine the Great.

1. Introduction: Origins
   1. Etruscan Prelude: 800â€“508 BC

2. The Republic: 508â€“30 BC
   1. The Struggle for Democracy: 508â€“264 BC
   4. The Greek Conquest: 201 BC-146 BC

   â€œThe new generation, having inherited world mastery, had no time or inclination to defend it; that readiness for war which had characterized the Roman landowner disappeared now that ownership was concentrated in a few families and a proletariat without stake in the country filled the slums of Rome.â€ (p. 90)

3. The Revolution: 145â€“30 BC
   1. The Agrarian Revolt: 145â€“78 BC
   2. The Oligarchic Reaction: 77â€“60 BC
   3. Literature Under the Revolution: 145â€“30 BC
   4. Caesar: 100â€“44 BC
5. Antony: 44â€“30 BC
   â€Children were now luxuries which only the poor could afford.â€ (p. 134)

4. The Principate: 30 BC-AD 192
   1. Augustan Statesmanship: 30 BC-AD 14
   2. The Golden Age: 30 BC-AD 18
   3. The Other Side of Monarchy: AD 14â€“96
   4. The Silver Age: AD 14â€“96
   5. Rome at Work: AD 14â€“96
   6. Rome and Its Art: 30 BC-AD 96
   7. Epicurean Rome: 30 BC-AD 96
   8. Roman Law: 146 BC-AD 192
   9. The Philosopher Kings: AD 96â€“180
   10. Life and Thought in the Second Century: AD 96â€“192

   â€If Rome had not engulfed so many men of alien blood in so brief a time, if she had passed all these newcomers through her schools instead of her slums, if she had treated them as men with a hundred potential excellences, if she had occasionally closed her gates to let assimilation catch up with infiltration, she might have gained new racial and literary vitality from the infusion, and might have remained a Roman Rome, the voice and citadel of the West.â€ (p. 366)

5. The Empire: AD 146-AD 192
   1. Italy
   2. Civilizing the West
   3. Roman Greece
   4. The Hellenistic Revival
   5. Rome and Judea: 132 BC-AD 135

6. The Youth of Christianity: 4 BC-AD 325
   1. Jesus: 4 BC-AD 30
   2. The Apostles: AD 30â€“95
   3. The Growth of the Church: AD 96â€“305
   4. The Collapse of the Empire: AD 193â€“305
   5. The Triumph of Christianity: AD 306â€“325

Epilogue
   â€Rome was not destroyed by Christianity, any more than by barbarian invasion; it was an empty shell when Christianity rose to influence and invasion came.â€ (p. 667-668)

IV. The Age of Faith (1950)

This volume covers the Middle Ages in both Europe and the Near East, from the time of Constantine I to that of Dante Alighieri.

1. The Byzantine Zenith: AD 325â€“565
   1. Julian the Apostate: 332-63
   2. The Triumph of the Barbarians: 325â€“476
   3. The Progress of Christianity: 364â€“451
   4. Europe Takes Form: 325â€“529
   5. Justinian: 527-65
   7. The Persians: 224â€“641

   "Historically, the conquest destroyed the outward form of what had already inwardly decayed; it cleared away with regrettable brutality and thoroughness a system of life which, with all its gifts of order, culture, and law, had worn itself into senile debility, and had lost the powers of regeneration and growth." (p. 43)

2. Islamic Civilization: AD 569â€“1258
   1. Mohammed: 569â€“632
   2. The Koran
Moslems seem to have been better gentlemen than their Christian peers; they kept their word more frequently, showed more mercy to the defeated, and were seldom guilty of the brutality as marked the Christian capture of Jerusalem in 1099.â€ (p. 341)

Epilogue: The Medieval Legacy

V. The Renaissance (1953)

This volume covers the history of Italy from c.1300 to the mid 16th century, focusing on the Italian Renaissance.

1. Prelude: 1300â€“77
   1. The Age of Petrarch and Boccaccio: 1304â€“75
   2. The Popes in Avignon: 1309â€“77
      "Venetian merchants invaded every market from Jerusalem to Antwerp; they traded impartially with Christians and Mohammedans, and papal excommunications fell upon them with all the force of dew upon the earth." (p. 39)

2. The Florentine Renaissance: 1378â€“1534
   1. The Rise of the Medici: 1378â€“1464
   2. The Golden Age: 1464â€“92
   3. Savonarola and the Republic: 1492â€“1534

   â€œBut it took more than a revival of antiquity to make the Renaissance. And first of all it took moneyâ€”smelly bourgeois money: ... of careful calculations, investments and loans, of interest and dividends accumulated until surplus could be spared from the pleasures of the flesh, from the purchase of senates, signories, and mistresses, to pay a Michaelangelo or a Titian to transmute wealth into beauty, and perfume a fortune with the breath of art. Money is the root of all civilization." (p. 67-68)

3. Italian Pageant: 1378â€“1534
   1. Milan
   2. Leonardo da Vinci
   3. Tuscany and Umbria
   4. Mantua
   5. Ferrara
   6. Venice and Her Realm
   7. Emilia and the Marches
   8. The Kingdom of Naples

   "He was not handsome; like most great men, he was spared this distracting handicap." (p. 185)

4. The Roman Renaissance: 1378â€“1521
   1. The Crisis in the Church: 1378â€“1521
   2. The Renaissance Captures Rome: 1447â€“92
   3. The Borgias
   5. Leo X: 1513â€“21

5. Debacle
   1. The Intellectual Revolt
   2. The Moral Release
   3. The Political Collapse: 1494â€“1534

6. Finale: 1534â€“76
   1. Sunset in Venice
   2. The Waning of The Renaissance

7. Envoi

VI. The Reformation (1957)

People then, as now, were judged more by their manners than by their morals; the world forgave more readily the sins that were committed with the least vulgarity and the greatest grace.

Criticism

The Story of Civilization has been criticized by some for simplifications, rash judgments colored by personal convictions, and allegedly careless dabbling in historical scholarship.

The counter to such criticism is that Durantâ€™s purpose in writing the series was not to create a definitive scholarly production but to make a large amount of information accessible and comprehensible to the educated public in the form of a comprehensive "composite history." Given the massive undertaking in creating these 11 volumes over 50 years, errors and incompleteness were inevitable by Durant's own reckoning; but no other historical survey matches let alone exceeds the breadth and depth of his project.

As Durant says in the preface to his first work, Our Oriental Heritage:
My response to his piece titled "What is Civilization?" is here. Nothing in this volume, however, seems to be born from a desire to conform to any religious dogma, although he does tell the Moses story as if we know it's factual. But he also writes: "As they entered the historic scene the Jews were nomad Bedouins who feared the djinns of the air, and worshiped rocks, cattle, sheep, and the spirits of caves and hill." One other of his sentences that seemed dated to me was "The greatest task of morals is always sexual regulation." The book has been described as The Story of Civilization is an 11-volume series of history books written by husband and wife Will and Ariel Durant from the 1930s until its final volume in 1975. They use what Will calls "integral history", describing not only the traditional wars and politics but also the literature, art, music, science, philosophy, religion, culture, and society of every age. The Story begins by describing how tribal societies become civilized, and begins its vast tour of history with ancient Sumer, Babylon, and Egypt. The series is astounding in breadth and depth, covering China, India, Japan, the Middle East, Russia, and all of Europe through thousands of years. Their last volume, The Age of Napoleon, ends in 1815 with the Battle of Waterloo; another volume in the works was halted by Will and Ariel's deaths.
